

Health Inside

Health Inside is a new public art intervention about the Irish prison system and prisoners' health in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

Across eight bus shelters and two billboards, the artwork reflects on prison conditions, the mental health of men and women in prison and the social problems that imprisonment can cause.

A collaborative public art intervention by visual artist Sinéad McCann and UCD historians Catherine Cox and Oisín Wall.

Exhibition Details

Dates: 10-22 November 2018

Location: Find a map for the location of the bus shelters and billboards in Dublin 7 at:

www.histprisonhealth.com/arts-projects/health-inside/

Social Media: @histPrisnHealth
www.histprisonhealth.com

Design consultancy for artworks by Deividas Dvylaitis

Health Inside.

1867